Fine Arts Division Declares Expansion Program For Year

Assistant Professorship Created and Many New Courses Added

Enlargement of the teaching staff and curriculum of George Washington University's Division of Fine Arts has been announced for the coming year. A new assistant professorship has been created in the Department of Architecture, and in the Department of Graphic Arts a new four-year course in illustration will be inaugurated.

Pascuala Mario Torrace has been appointed assistant professor of Architecture. A graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, Professor Torrace has spent much time studying in Italy and France. He has taught at the University of Cincinnati, Pennsylvania State College, and Cooper Union, and for six years was engaged in private practice. In addition to instructing courses in Elementary Design, Advanced Composition and Office Practice, Professor Torrace will give a course which is new to the Department dealing with the planning, decoration, and mechanical equipment of domestic buildings.

The course in Illustration has been organized in response to a frequently expressed desire on the part of students for preparation in professional illustrating. Students in this course will devote the entire morning of each school day for four years to the execution of problems in composition and to the study of color theory, methods of reproduction, and the fundamentals of decorative painting. Eugene Weisz, of the University faculty, will give the course in Illustration. Mr. Weisz is an artist whose work is widely and favorably known in this city and others where he has exhibited.

The Division of Fine Arts, of which Professor Norris I. Crandall is director, was made a separate academic unit of The George Washington University three years ago. Graduate work in Fine Arts was offered last year for the first time and the degree of Master of Fine Arts was conferred upon two graduates at the commencement in June. Garnet W. Jex, Washington artist, was the first to receive the degree with a major in Graphic Art submitting as his thesis a mural painting of the laying out of the city of Washington, depicting Major Pierre L'Enfant displaying to General Washington his plans for the city. The other graduate degree was conferred upon Douglas G. W. McRae, of Toronto, Canada, whose thesis was an architectural rendering of a traffic solution in the L'Enfant Plan for the city of Washington.

Glee Club Tryout Thursday Evening

Working Number of 35 or 40
Men Will Be Established
Early in Season

Voice tryouts for the George Washington University Men's Glee Club will be held at a meeting in Corcoran Hall 10, on Thursday, October 1, at 7:30.

While most of the men of last year's club are expected to be available this season, a number of vacancies will occur, particularly in the first tenor section. Any man with a liking for glee club singing is invited to attend the tryouts.

Dr. Robert H. Harmon, director, expects to establish the club with a working number of 35 or 40 men very early in the season. The tentative selection of members will depend upon their demonstrated singing ability. Their permanent retention will be based upon interest in the work, attendance at rehearsals, and adaptability to choral singing. Candidates not chosen at the first tryouts will be placed upon a reserve list, from which selections will be made as vacancies may occur during the year.

1930 Was Busy Season
The Glee Club completed last year the busiest season in its history. In addition to participating in the National Intercollegiate Glee Club contest in New York, as 1930 winners and as the representative of the Middle Atlantic region, the club made more than 40 appearances in Washington.

200 Couples Attend Interfraternity Hop

Football Men Guests at Greek Council Dance After Shenandoah Game

Despite inclement weather about 200 couples gathered in Corcoran Hall Saturday evening to celebrate the first victory of the current football season. Coach Pixlee's boys were honor guests of the occasion and acquitted themselves very creditably at the dance.

Goldman's orchestra furnished the music for the dance, which, according to all reports, was entirely satisfactory to everyone present. Members of the Interfraternity Council assisted Chairman Jack Vivian of the social committee at the door and were kept more or less busy sponsoring dances for freshmen of both sexes who made up a large part of the crowd.

The Shenandoah team, with the exception of a few members, left Washington by bus immediately after the game and did not attend the dance as was originally intended. "Mose" Brown, plucky right halfback on the visiting squad, took the bow for his teammates and expressed himself as being in favor of George Washington brand of football, co-eds, and entertainment.

Another dance will be given this Saturday night after the game with Elon College. Both the George Washington and the Elon squads will be guests of the Interfraternity Council at this dance, and the student body is cordially invited to attend another victory dance.

Columbian Women Awards Announced

Four Students Receive Scholarships for Continued High Averages in the University

Mrs. William Carl Ruediger, chairman of the Scholarship Committee of Columbian Women, has announced the following assignments of Columbian Women Scholarships for the coming year.

Martha Osborne and Elizabeth Middelem, sophomores in Junior College, will be continued on the scholarships awarded them last year.

Grace Z. Young, a sophomore in the Medical School, has again been assigned the Lewis D. and Myrtle H. Wilson Scholarship, which she held last year.

The Elizabeth V. Brown Scholarship, which is administered by Columbian Women, was assigned during the summer to Evelyn Schutz, to enable her to be graduated from the School of Education next month and to take a teaching position this fall. Ordinarily Columbian Women scholarships are assigned only during the regular school year, but an exception was made in this case.

Members of the Scholarship Committee are: Mrs. Ruediger, chairman; Mrs. William J. Mallory, president of Columbian Women, member ex officio; Mrs. Joshua Evans, Jr., Mrs. D. K. Shute, Miss Elizabeth Peet, Miss Ruth Bennett, Miss Ella Given and Miss Dorothy Ruth.

General Information Concerning Library Issued For University Students' Benefit

Card Catalogue in General Library Lists Location of Books; Periodicals and Books, Except in Reserve Section, May Be Withdrawn for Two Weeks

For the benefit of University students general information concerning the material which is available in the library is given. The University Library comprises the General Library, the Law Library, and the Medical Library.

The General Library, in Lisner Hall, Building J, 2023 G street, is open from 8:45 A. M. to 10:30 P. M. each school day, and from 3 to 9 P. M. on Sundays.

The Law Library, in Stockton Hall, Building Q, 720 Twentieth street, is open from 9 A. M. to 11 P. M. each school day, and from 2 to 6 P. M. on Sundays.

The Medical Library, 1335 H street, is open each school day.

In the General Library the books are on the open shelves of the first and second floor reading rooms. The Card Catalogue, which is located in the center of the first floor reading room, lists the books in the library and tells where they are located.

All the cards, author, subject, and title, are arranged in one alphabet like a dictionary. Example: The book entitled "Curriculum Problems" by Thomas Briggs may be found under Briggs, the author, in the drawer marked B; under "Curriculum Problems," the title, in the drawer marked C; and under "Education, Curricula," and figures in the upper left hand corner of each card constitute the "call number," which gives the location of the book on the shelf. To obtain a book, the call number and the author and title should be copied from the card and handed to the library assistant.

Books and periodicals, except those in the Reserve Section, may be withdrawn for a period of two weeks. They may be renewed unless there is a special demand for them. Before any library material is withdrawn from the room it must be recorded at the borrowing desk. The library assistant will make out the charge slip and the borrower will sign his name and address distinctly.

The Reserve Section in the front of the first floor reading room is the place to apply for most of the references which are given in class. Professors ask to have placed in the Reserve Section the books and periodicals which are used for supplementary reading. Reserve books are for use in the library reading rooms only.

If the Library has only one copy of a reference and there is a great demand for it, the period of use may be restricted. To obtain a reserve book, fill out a reserve book slip at the reserve counter. The book must be returned to that section by the student to whom it was charged.

Encyclopaedias, dictionaries and other books of the reference collection, which are on the shelves just outside of the Reserve Section, are for use only in the room. The theses written at the George Washington University are filed and do not circulate outside of the Library. Current periodicals are kept in the Reserve Section and in (Continued on Page 6, Col. 2)

Walter Lyman Rice Appointed Lecturer

Plans Course to Aid in Preparation of Students for Commercial Careers

Walter Lyman Rice, successor to Cyril Bryce Upham as lecturer on Commercial and Maritime Law, will stress in his course for the coming year the orientation of the non-professional student of law to those principles and rules which will be of service in the course of all commercial careers.

Mr. Rice is at present a special assistant to the Attorney General. He had charge of the Department of Justice investigation of the Sugar Institute, the organization which is now being prosecuted for violation of the Anti-Trust Law. Receiving his bachelor's degree at the University of Minnesota, he entered the Harvard Law School from which he graduated in 1928. Since that time he has been connected with the Department of Justice.

While at the University of Minnesota Mr. Rice's extra curricular interests centered in publications and he achieved the editorship of the daily newspaper of that school.

Colonial Gridders Blank Shenandoah In Listless Game

Crush Rivals by 53-0 Score to Prove Supremacy of the Best Team

Completely outplaying their opponents in every department of the game, George Washington University's football squad whitewashed Shenandoah College to the score of 53 to 0 in the Central High School Stadium last Saturday afternoon.

Little opposition was offered by the small Virginia college and Coach Jim Pixlee took full advantage of this fact, using every man on the squad, except four, at one time or another during the course of the game. A first team has not been picked as yet but it is quite possible that the information secured by the extensive experimentation conducted by the head coach, in the game Saturday, will lead to the choosing of the varsity eleven. And to quote Coach Pixlee's comment on the contest, "the game served our purpose."

Carlin Outstanding
Lee Carlin led the Colonials in their first march down the field, making three first downs en route which terminated in a touchdown. Jack Jones kicked the goal for the point. This first drive and ultimate score was quite indicative of the action in the rest of the game.

The second score was the result of short and long drives off tackle and around the ends interspersed with passes tossed by Carlin, John Doyle, and John Matia. At the beginning of the second quarter Coach Pixlee made numerous substitutions which little deterred George Washington from its goalward marches. Another touchdown was made when Joe Carter tore off 9 yards from the 20-yard line after the kick-off and Carlin scurried around end for the goal line. Lee Carlin was again the major factor in the achieving of the fourth touchdown when he received a Shenandoah punt, running it back to his opponent's 40-yard mark and then rushing the ball over in two plays.

It was in this, the second quarter, that Shenandoah College made its only threat in the form of a 25-yard pass which was quickly subdued on the next play by the redoubtable G. W. U. linesmen.

Shenandoah Swamped
The third quarter was merely a repetition of the first two with continued substitutions on the part of both teams; the Colonials ever driving successfully toward the goal posts of the Virginia college. The two counters of this semester were scored by heaves from Matia to Wesley Hendrickson and from Doyle to Frank Cogler.

Election Will Fill Office in Council

Vacant Seat in Library Science Division to Be Filled
October 14

The Student Council announces an election, to be held Wednesday, October 14, to select a representative to the Council from the Division of Library Science.

Candidates for this position must be students of the division in good standing, who have satisfactorily completed at least 45 semester hours and have spent at least one year in residence at the University.

Petitions nominating candidates must bear the names of at least five per cent of the students in good standing registered in the division. According to the regulations of the Council, any student who signs more than one petition shall have his name stricken from all petitions on which it appears. For the information of candidates and their supporters, the total number of students registered in the division will be posted tomorrow morning, Wednesday, on the Student Council bulletin board in the rear of Building J.

All nominating petitions must be in the hands of Theodore Rhinehart in the Law School library on the fourth floor of Stockton Hall not later than Saturday morning, October 3, in order that candidates' names may be announced with further particulars of the election in next week's Hatchet.

This election is necessary to fill a vacancy in the Council caused by the failure of the Division of Library Science to elect a representative in the regular elections last Spring.

Football

A varsity team that will offer keen competition to our strongest opponents made its bow to the University on Saturday at Central Stadium. Students, faculty and coaches were apparently very well satisfied with the results. There are plenty of rough spots of course, which were more obvious because of playing conditions, but they will gradually disappear as the men round into shape.

There is plenty of speculation as to just who the team is going to lick, and why, but The Hatchet is sure of one thing, and that is that a good lusty cheering section will help immeasurably. Men wishing to try out for cheer leading have been asked to report at the gym (cheer leaders, by the way, are worth one point in the estimation of the Council—twice as much as a varsity man), and it is hoped that a group of men capable of generating some real enthusiasm will be developed.

The football player, out merely for the love and appreciation of the game, must devote long and strenuous hours of preparation, and in spite of lack of recognition from one source, the student body should remember that a team such as we have is an asset to the University and should be encouraged in every possible way. Your contribution will be a well organized, enthusiastic cheering section.

Rushing Rules

Various rumors have been brought to light regarding violation of the inter-fraternity rushing rules. If there have actually been violations, and nothing is done about it, the inevitable conclusion will be that the rules were not made to be enforced, but merely to put a good face upon conditions. Let the suckers abide by the rules, and the others will get the freshmen!

The least the Council can do, and doubtless will do, is to investigate the reports which come to its ears, and establish their truth or falsity. Not only specific charges brought up in Council meetings, but also rumors which have been circulated, should be investigated, which if grounded, call for its action, and if groundless should be stopped before a shadow is cast upon the organization involved.

It Had to Come

The "carefully balanced evaluation of extra-curricular activities" devised by the Student Council as a part of the point system is under fire. Two complaints, the more explicit of several received by the editor, appear on this page.

The first complaints of the "unfair" and "detrimental" step taken by the Council in allotting a man a scant half point for devoting his entire time outside of class and study hours to varsity sports—poor recognition. We hope the Council will see its error in classification of this significant position, or, perhaps there is no explanation for the lack of credit extended. Men on varsity, particularly football, squads, do not need a point system to limit their participation in other activities. The sport is self limiting. The point raised is that the Council has but meagerly acknowledged the importance played by this activity in the life of the school.

The second letter complains of the "ridiculous" credit for glee club members. Here again the Council has shown itself to be ignorant of the time and effort necessary to fill a certain position in comparison with other positions.

Other letters dealing with less flagrant conditions, and some condemning the system as a whole have been received, but were unsigned, and in accordance with the policy of The Hatchet no letters to the editor will be published unless the contributor has strength enough in his convictions to affix his signature.

It is significant that the majority of the complaints are not against the system, but against the grading of the various activities, and an upward—not downward—revision is suggested. Apparently the scale is now so low that no one is affected by the system, and it has defeated its purpose.

Worthwhile Activities

The Hatchet has issued a call for applications for positions on its editorial and reporting staff, and the glee club is announcing a voice try-out of prospective members. Here are two extra-curricular activities which are worthy of your attention.

The Hatchet affords an unusual opportunity to students for practical training in journalism. There are several openings on the staff, which will be awarded strictly on a basis of merit, and whether you have had experience or not there is an opportunity for you.

The glee club has gained nation-wide recognition within the past two years, having developed one of the finest male singing groups in intercollegiate circles, and membership in the organization is an honor. Worth while? Certainly!

CHIPS

Back on the old ball again! Do I feel bad? Say folks, I don't believe I'll ever get out of this school. And if I do it'll be the year we move into our new school—Colonial style, million dollar stadium, million dollar gym, million dollar whoozit, whatzit, etc.—Well, as I said before, I'll be here for some time.

It has come to our ears that the Troubadours are now singing in two different groups—different words to the same tune—and it's a horrible discord. Will the followers of Messrs. Beattie & Wells kindly take notice—and act accordingly. Harmony is the one thing the Troubadours just can't do without.

If it weren't for my sense of duty, I'd close up shop for several weeks and watch the fun. It's been a long time since Rollo has seen a combined assault on the freshmen such as promises to be this year. Fraternities and sororities can certainly think of some prize ways of rushing.

Speaking of rushing—your little Rollo got a swell rush up at The Hatchet Office the other day. Win Weitzel, Jack Vivian, and Dan Beattie cornered me and then all began to talk at once. No, dear reader, this ain't that kind of a story. No one wants to try to pledge little Rollo—just yet.

"Where do you buy your clothes?" they demanded.

"Oh, that's a secret." Little Rollo was getting suspicious. "What d'ya want to know for, anyway?"

"Better buy your fall suit up at Raleigh's," advised Win.

"Oh, yeah?" says Jack. "Get your suit at Grosner's or I'll black ball you and you'll never get into the Dramatic Club."

"Buy your suit from me up at Raleigh's," commanded Win, "and if you don't I'll write Chips myself."

"Well," broke in Dan, "you got to have a suit for that Troubadour part, a Bond suit, or I guess you won't do for the cast."

"I ain't got no money," says I. "That don't make any difference, you got credit," they chorused.

What's a fellow going to do? Now I've pledged myself to blossom out in a Raleigh suit, a Grosner top coat, with hat, and trimmings from Bond's. That's what comes from campus representatives—and the rep of being a spiffy dresser.

While we're on the subject of pledging—there is the usual hue concerning dirty rushing. "What's this I hear about you taking so-and-so to dinner last night?" "Who is that fellow I seen you with last night?" That ain't no fellow. That's just a cousin.

Coch Pixlee and his Pack of Camels—I mean Pachyderms—started the annual slaughter this year with Shenandoah furnishing the material. You pikers who didn't see the game missed an exhibition of shock troops this dear old school has never seen before. Boys, we have a team this year! And Rollo doesn't mean perhaps.

That Shenandoah team got only one laugh out of the whole game—and that was the few whispers that Sickler painfully drew from an ardent band of rosters. Organized cheering makes a team show its best. We certainly need some fighting spirit. How about some pep rallies before the games?

We (editorial) want to thank the Student Council for the brawl last Wednesday night. We had a swell bit of scrimmage on both gridirons, Stockton and Corcoran. Will the lad who took my date home that night kindly return same with thanks. It's too much trouble landing another one.

The Interfraternity Council comes in for its share of praise also. That was quite a turnout in Corcoran Saturday. They got a dollar for it, though. You'll miss me in my usual haunts for a few days.

Being as how the Library Science Division has been too blushing modest to send a worry wart to the Council, we now extend them a special invitation to join the crowd.

Jack Dishman is one man this school can bank on for support. That football program was a wow, Jack! Keep up the good work.

And did you see our editor's invitation to try out for our efficient staff? Hurrah!!! It's sure been hard to get dates around here lately. We need young blood.

The Stork visited the Sigma Chi house on Saturday night, and Sunday morning the actives greeted seven new brothers! Quick Henry, the Flit!!!

Doc Quigley and Empress Eugenie will both be sorry to note that only Dad can claim the $6 refund for money advanced when our co-eds made their pledges for the student union fund last spring.

Page a Siegfried or a Beowulf! The Dragons are loose again. The first fall get-together resulted in only a few minor casualties and a broken arm. Maybe they'll kill themselves next time.

Trust Rollo to search-out the stark truth. It has been learned that our huge football squad this year is due to the palatial quarters installed at some place on Kay Street. Husky he-men are deserting firesides and mother's arms in droves to join the crowd. Where there's a will, there's a way—I mean a football team. Dick Rollo.

Letters to Editor

To the Editor:

In last week's issue of The Hatchet there was a column devoted to the grading, by a point system, of the various campus activities. The point system is presumably based upon the importance and time required of the many activities given recognition.

The groups range from one-half to eight points. On careful examination it was particularly noticed in the group at the bottom of the schedule, which is the one-half point class, listed "Men's Athletics." A mere half point for three months of strenuous physical effort that football, a major sport, requires—and there are some that the Student Council seems to think merit eight points. In the leading Universities in the country being a member of an athletic team is equally as important as participation in any of the five point activities that the Council has listed.

In my mind the action of the Student Council is not only unfair, but possibly detrimental to the athletics, as a whole, in the University. A freshman entering school, in considering participation in campus activities will overlook athletics because, according to the Student Council's point system, they are unimportant and play a small part in campus life. He will, instead, give his preference to those activities which have a higher rating and which require much less time, effort and ability. Furthermore, the game is self-limiting—it allows no time for other activities. The training rules permit no participation in social activities. If the point system is based on the number of hours spent, or on ability, athletics have not been considered justly. Some effort should be made to correct this unbalanced and unfair conclusion.

The various associations about the campus should have this matter called to their attention, and be induced to strongly condemn this action of the Student Council and advocate reconsideration of the points given for participation in "Men's Athletics."

Sincerely,
WILLIAM HELVESTINE.

To the Editor:

The student who is employed during the day and attends classes from 5 until 7 is neither required nor given the opportunity to regularly spend time in the gymnasium of the University, yet the non-working student who attends the earlier classes is required to take two hours of physical education during the freshman and sophomore years.

Regular freshman and sophomore

Students of the University are hereby welcomed at all services of GRACE LUTHERAN CHURCH, Sixteenth and Vermont Streets, N. W. Sunday School Sundays, 9:30 a. m. Dr. Seeger will lead the students' class, offering a course on "Comparative Religions." Morning worship at 11, evening worship at 7. "The Friendly Hour" for fellowship at 8 p. m. with supper at 9.

courses in Physical Education are arranged for men and women students in the Junior College, the School of Engineering, and the School of Pharmacy.

"These courses in Physical education are required of all freshmen and sophomore students, provided only that students taking less than three subjects, and students all of whose work is in the late afternoon hours, are specifically exempt from this provision of requirements in Physical Education."

"Any other exemption from the requirements of Physical Education for men and Physical Education for women, is conditioned on the recommendation of the University Medical Staff to the Executive Officer of Physical Education in the department concerned. This applies equally to men and women."

"Students entering the University with advanced standing are not exempt from the Physical Education requirement unless they have satisfactorily met the requirement elsewhere."

From this I judge that a physical education program is deemed by the University to be of benefit to the student. The only regular gymnasium class available for late afternoon students.

Boston, Elon, Butler Lose Close Contests

Future Opponents of George Washington Better Than Scores Indicate

Elon College, George Washington University's opponent in the next football contest on Saturday afternoon at Central High stadium, suffered defeat at the hands of Roanoke College to the count of 27 to 9, last Saturday, while two other of G. W. U.'s future opponents lost close games, Boston University losing by a 18 to 0 score to Williams and Butler to Franklin by a 6-7 count.

Although the score of the Elon-Roanoke game indicates that the North Carolina college has a rather weak team, the numbers do not ring true. According to newspaper accounts it was an exceptionally stiff contest through the first three quarters and that the last minute burst on the part of Roanoke accounted for the one-sided score.

Reports concerning Tulsa, North Dakota University, Salem, and Iowa University could not be obtained.

Managerial System Adopted In Football

Only Seniors Eligible for Varsity; Juniors May Be Assistants

A new policy has been adopted by the Athletic Department for selecting the managers of the various athletic teams. In forming this new policy a managerial system similar to those used in most of the large colleges throughout the country has been drawn up.

Briefly the system is as follows: Seniors only will be eligible for the managerhips of the varsity teams, juniors may be assistants to the managers and in line for a managerhip in their senior year, sophomores will act as managers of the freshman teams with freshmen as their assistants. There will also be a senior manager who will act as head of the corps of varsity managers.

Such a system offers fair competition and provides for the choosing of the best men for the managerhips.

All men in the freshman and sophomore classes who are interested in managerial positions in any sport should leave written applications with Max Farrington in the athletic office in the gymnasium. Appointments will be made to fill a number of vacancies in the new system which is to go in effect immediately and thus applications should be turned in as soon as possible.

Freshman Football Has Good Outlook For Present Year

Squad of 35 Men Consists of Many Former High School Stars

Freshman football at George Washington University this fall is faced with a most promising aspect. Jean Sexton, coach of the yearling chargers, seems most enthusiastic, though he won't declare that they will win every game.

The squad consists of about 35 men who boast reputations as excellent players in high or prep school, and are spending most of their time in individual drill, team work, and explanation of systems. At the present time drills have only been held for two days, but even at this early date the boys look good, although they will have to work off extra poundage.

Strong Backfield

In the backfield there appears to be a very strong combination, composed of Knott, who plays quarterback and is a triple threat man; Hale, who is a cousin to Barney, plays halfback; Nielson, brother of "Ras," and Venderburg. Among the more prominent line candidates are Kresky, brother of the line coach, and Coombs, who plays a guard position. There are also three local boys who are showing up well, Albert, an end; Trilling, a quarterback, who is another triple threat man, and Draper, who plays a backfield position. All these men were star players at Emerson.

The freshman season opens October 10 against Devitt at Eastern Stadium. This should prove to be a good game as Devitt has always turned out fine football teams in past years.

The second game on October 17, against Western Maryland freshmen, is the feature of the schedule. Those who were in the University two years ago will recall that this was the only team which defeated the 1929 freshmen, and then only by a 7-6 score. Western Maryland frosh have not played here since then so this should prove to be an interesting encounter at Griffith Stadium.

On October 23, the freshmen will

St. John's Prep will be the yearling's guest on November 7. This game will give the boys an opportunity to display their team play, because by that time they should be fairly well drilled.

Emerson Prep will play the Colonial freshmen on November 11 at Eastern Stadium. This game should be a fairly interesting affair and give all the boys an opportunity to play.

Interfrat Tennis Gets Under Way

Delta Tau Delta and Theta Delta Chi Play Off Opening Matches

Interfraternity tennis, which started last Sunday, was almost completely obliterated by the elements. There were only two teams who had the courage to play, namely Delta Tau Delta, and Theta Delta Chi. In this match Theta Delta handed the Deltas a 3-2 beating to move up one notch in the ladder.

The Deltas started strongly as Woodward triumphed over Bouve in two straight sets, 7-5 and 6-0. Bouve fought well in the first set, but withered under Woodward's fire in the second one. In the second singles match Curdard had a fairly easy time downing Hix, the Delt number two man, 6-2 and 6-3. In this match Hix appeared to be outclassed by his faster opponent. The third singles match was a see-saw affair between Henderson, of Theta Delta, and Caredis. Henderson started in great form, taking the first match 6-1, and then Caredis staged a comeback to win the second and third matches 6-2 and 6-0.

The first doubles match between Curdard and Storrell, of Theta Delta, and Caredis and Hughes gave the Theta Deltas their second victory, 6-4 and 6-3. In this match the boys from Rhode Island avenue proved that they were more than supreme in doubles. Their driving and serving was very strong as well as their placements.

In the second doubles match there was an "Horatio Alger" ending, Woodward and Hix of the Deltas nosing out Bouve and Henderson. The Deltas won the first set, 6-4, and then the Theta Deltas returned the compliment with the same score. Going into the last match with each team having two matches won, and a set apiece, both played for the odd one. After battling them back and forth for quite a while, the Theta Deltas finally emerged victorious 9-7.

This victory gives Theta Delta Chi the right to play the winner of one of the other teams in the bracket. The other teams scheduled are Sigma Chi against Acacia, and Phi Sigma Kappa against Theta Upsilon Omega. In the other bracket Kappa Alpha meets Kappa Sigma, Sigma Alpha Epsilon meets Sigma Nu, while Sigma Phi Epsilon drew a bye.

Sport Axe

If one will read the last issue of The Hatchet he will discover an article depicting the new point system governing the number of activities a student may enter and the credit each respective activity is worth. This point system was devised and conceived by the Student Council. An examination of the system shows that the Council had the audacity to assign to a student who is on the football squad the amazing credit of one-half point, while on the other hand it gives members of glee clubs, debate teams, and endowment fund committees one point. It gives the captains of athletic teams two points and a senior manager of men's athletics receives five points. It is not known what criterion the Student Council followed when establishing the point system, but it shows its ignorance of the time and effort that a member of a football or basketball squad puts in his respective activity outside of classes. The present system is rather out of balance when compared with similar systems of other large universities, where a captain of an athletic team is on the same level as the senior manager of a men's or women's debate team.

It is evident from a perusal of the local metropolitan dailies during the last few weeks that the George Washington football team is receiving more recognition and publicity than it has since the famous "Iron Men" team of (Continued on Next Page)

The George Washington University Medical Society, and the International Convention of the Disciples of Christ. Further, several programs were given over local radio stations.

Early in June the club produced two phonograph records at the studios of the RCA Victor Company in Camden, N. J. The making of these records was the outgrowth of a desire on the part of those connected with the club that the work of what is considered the finest choral unit ever developed at the University might not be forgotten in future years.

Popular Songs Recorded

The songs used, chosen as best illustrating the pianissimo singing for which the club was noted, were "Lo, How a Rose E'er Blooming," by Michael Praetorius; "Benedictus," from Gounod's "St. Cecilia Mass;" "Old Man Noah," an old sea chantey, and "The Buff and Blue," and "Alma Mater," the George Washington University songs.

The club's officers for the coming year are Richard A. Hill, president; George Y. Jarvis, manager; Samuel B. Detwiler, Jr., secretary, and Robert W. Cushman, treasurer.

University School of Medicine Tops American Medical Association List

With Earl Baldwin McKinley as its newly appointed dean, The George Washington University School of Medicine last week opened its one hundred and sixth year. Ninety students, carefully selected from among several hundred qualified candidates who applied for entrance, are enrolled as the freshman class.

Dean McKinley, A. B., M. D., is an eminent bacteriologist, teacher, and medical administrator. Formerly he was professor of bacteriology in the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Columbia University and director of the School of Tropical Medicine of the University of Porto Rico. He has conducted extensive research in tropical diseases.

Dr. Oscar Benwood Hunter, Dr. Walter Andrew Bloedorn, and Dr. Joseph Hiram Roe continue as assistant deans of the School of Medicine in charge of the Hospital, the Clinical, and the Preclinical Divisions, respectively.

Franklin Forman Murdoch, M. D., LL. D., M. C. U. S. N., has been appointed professor of Tropical Medicine, succeeding Montgomery Earle Higgins, M. D. Dr. Murdoch has served as head of the Department of Medical Zoology, instructor in Parasitology, and director of Laboratories of the United States Naval Medical School.

Nine faculty promotions have been announced, as follows: Dr. Karl H. Langenstras from associate professor of Neuro-Pathology to professorial lecturer on Pathology; Dr. Harry Alfred Ong from associate professor of Pediatrics to clinical professor of Pediatrics; Dr. William Berry Marbury from associate professor of Surgery to clinical professor of Surgery; Dr. Frederick August Reuter from associate professor of Urology to clinical professor of Urology; Dr. Guy Whitman Leadbetter from associate in Surgery to clinical professor of Surgery; Dr. Albert Perkins Tibbets from clinical associate in Otolaryngology to clinical professor of Otolaryngology; Dr. Paul Sterling Futski from clinical associate in Surgery to clinical professor of Surgery; Dr. Arch Lockhart Riddick from clinical associate in Surgery to clinical professor of Surgery.

According to figures compiled by the American Medical Association, The George Washington University School of Medicine stands, with Johns Hopkins University School of Medicine, at the top of the list in respect to the percentage of graduates who are successful before state medical examining boards. Neither school has had a single failure on the part of a graduate during the past year. Harvard University stands second on the list, and the University of Pennsylvania third.

WORLD NEWS

"The week of September 26, 1931," as one writer expresses it, will be remembered "probably as long as that final week in October, 1929, which marked the stock market crash." The spotlight of prominence flattered from England and its suspension of the gold standard to the American Legion Convention in Detroit and its abandonment of the bonus and the adoption of a wet plank; to the wage cut announced by the steel and automotive industries; and finally hit upon the various political groups of the country.

Faced by a shortage of gold, Ramsay MacDonald summoned the House of Lords and a bill was rushed through Parliament suspending Winston Churchill's gold conversion act of 1926. England's troubles date back to the passage of the conversion act which is thought by many to have been inaugurated before the country was ready for it. That a coal strike, a dele system that has been costing millions annually, the investment of domestic capital abroad, two or three prime scandals within the empire, and finally the withdrawal of gold by international bankers created the necessary havoc which a poorly planned budget could not remedy.

The effects of the suspension have not been as devastating as predicted. Although many of the major exchanges closed following the announcement and the New York Stock Exchange forbade short selling, prices actually reached new heights and, although erratic, the market showed many favorable signs.

Just what England plans in regard to the pound sterling cannot be foretold. The price dropped as low as 84 during the past week. There are several courses open. If the price can be kept up to 4.40 an attempt might be made to restore the gold basis. If not, the pound could be revalorized at whatever figure the world would pay. The situation is not at all a gloomy one. David Lloyd George, Lord Beaverbrook, and John Pierpont Morgan range from conservative approval to enthusiastic applause of the step taken. Certainly it is true that it has done nothing to increase world-wide depression.

That the American Legion has become a power in national politics is a reality at last. Declining to speak on the same platform with two men with whom he might be concerned in the elections of next year, President Hoover saw the handwriting on the wall of his Rapid Camp in the shape of another bonus and made a flying trip to the convention. There, in no uncertain terms, he told the heroes assembled that not even the rich men of the country could afford another addition to an already overburdened budget.

The Legion took his word for it and voted down all proposals for the payment of the final 50 per cent of the bonus. But it added a little stinger in the form of a proposal that a referendum be taken of the states in regard to the prohibition issue. So there has been added to the ranks of the American Bar Association, the American Medical Association and the American Federation of Labor, another ally in the fight against prohibition.

Opening salutes were fired in the political campaigns about to be launched with the appearance of Chairman Fess and Executive Director Lucas in Springfield, Mass. Their object was to insure Republican success in the elections by repairing the chest of funds; concentration on certain districts of doubtful character, and the nomination and re-election of Herbert Hoover.

Two days previously, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Jahncke, had been making a tour of the west bearing the same standards. Postmaster General Brown went him one better at the National Association of Postmasters, at Omaha, Neb., when he declared the necessity of Hooverism and the inhabitation of the White House by that gentleman for another four years.

As was to be expected, it aroused a slight commotion in the Democratic ranks. Senator Hull, of Tennessee, and Chairman Shouse of the Executive Committee, condemned the speech and expressed the conviction that the country would follow suit in protesting the soliciting of the post office forces as campaign aides.

Otherwise everything was quiet along the Potomac.

1927 when a squad of 14 men went through a schedule of nine games, winning seven of them. This famous outfit defeated Fordham and Rutgers and lost by small margins to Catholic University and Penn State.

During the years of 1928 and 1930 football as an activity was on the decline. However, last year it changed course and started on the upgrade. This present season from the meager facts on hand appears to be a promising one, and it is the fervent hope of all those who are interested in the fame of the University that the termination of the 1931 football schedule will see G. W. U. in a prominent place in the sport pages of our newspapers.

A rather interesting fact was observed at the game with Shenandoah College last Saturday. Although the Colonials outstrided, outpassed, and outmaneuvered the Virginia college eleven, they did not attain the distance on punts that their opponents achieved. The Shenandoah backs, of course, had much more kicking to accomplish because of the continual threatening of their goal by G. W. U., therefore they perhaps were inspired. Nevertheless the punts of the Shenandoah backfield averaged about 35 yards while those of the George Washington punters were about 25 yards.

Our football squad has residence now in a palatial structure on K Street that approaches the literary "Imperial Palace" in appointments and equipment. With such surroundings and advantages—especially the kitchen and refrigerators—our gridiron warriors should excel in battle this autumn.

Ten men were used in the backfield by Coach Pixlee in the Shenandoah game and they all played well. It is possible from the present dilemma that Mr. Pixlee is in, regarding the picking of a varsity team, that George Washington University will possess one of these famous 8-man backfields similar to the one of the North Carolina eleven of 1930.

Although a large contingent of G. W. U. students were present at the game Saturday they did not let the team know they were there. A would-be gentleman known as Jerry Sickler was strenuously endeavoring to instill the spectators into a bit of spontaneous cheering, but it was of no avail. With the rise of the football team in ability it seems a pity that the student body could not do a little lusty yelling once a week to encourage our eleven.

In connection with cheering the Interfraternity Council has offered some excellent support in the form of a plan in which it is provided that all of the pledges of the various social fraternities will compose a solid cheering section that will be present at all games, both football and basketball.

From the size and prep school reputations of the freshman football squad, it is possible that the Yearlings will enjoy a successful season. However, they will be obliged to play their best throughout the schedule as they meet foes of Western Maryland, St. John's and other teams of like ability.

show its evident superiority in the fourth period, blocking a punt which resulted in a counter, Davis carrying the ball over the double stripe. The final score was made by Coogler, after a Shenandoah pass had been intercepted by Charlie Chestnut who proceeded a few yards at a tremendous speed and then unfortunately stumbled.

It was difficult to judge the true strength of the George Washington team because of the many substitutions and the almost complete lack of opposition on the part of Shenandoah College. Practically all of the aspiring ball carriers of Pixlee's retinue saw service.

Ten G. W. Backs in Game
Carlin, Carter, Coogler, Doyle, Hoffman, Jones, Parrish, Matia, Hendrickson and Kriemelmeyer all were in the fracas. Carlin, Matia and Doyle did most of the passing which was better than expected as Coach Pixlee previously bemoaned the absence of a competent heaver.

One player of the Shenandoah outfit deserves mention. Brown, who played at half did most of the ground gaining and passing, and supported the line in excellent fashion.

Extension Classes, Increased Faculty, Advance Education

Will Develop Center for Study of Educational Theory and Practice

A program of expansion in teacher-training has been adopted for the School of Education of the George Washington University. The program, which will be carried out during the next few years, is part of the plan to develop the school as the center in this part of the country for the study of educational theory and methods.

Development will be along two main lines: (1) Organization of extension classes to be offered, through the University's Division of University and Extension Students, in the vicinity of Washington for the benefit of the teachers of Maryland, Virginia, and other nearby States. (2) The bringing each year to Washington as visiting members of the faculty of the School of Education the outstanding individuals in the country in various branches of education.

Extension courses in Curriculum Problems of the Public School will be opened by the University in Alexandria and Fairfax next week.

The Alexandria class will be taught by Miss Louise Pitts, supervisor of instruction in Alexandria. Miss Pitts is a specialist in the organization of public school studies. Prior to coming to Alexandria, she directed the reorganization of the curriculum in the public schools of the State of Alabama. Her class will be held at the high school in Alexandria on Tuesdays, from 4 to 6, and will carry two semester hours of college credit. Teachers may register for the class at the high school.

Those who are entering the Fairfax class will register with the county superintendent of schools at Fairfax.

The second part of the program, that of bringing outstanding teacher-training experts to Washington, has been inaugurated this semester with Prof. Lois Coffey, Mossman, of Teachers College, Columbia University, as the visiting expert. She will give a course in industrial arts which articulates with the public school program for the correlation of art work in the elementary school with the students' home economics and manual activities. Prof. Mossman has been a member of the faculty of Teachers' College for many years, and her work in the field of industrial arts education is outstanding. The class is scheduled for Tuesdays, from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Prof. Mossman will be succeeded next summer by Prof. L. M. Glas, of Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla., and Miss Ethel Maybelle of Madison, Wis.

Prof. Glas' special field is the junior high school. Miss Maybelle is widely known through her investigations into methods of teaching English, and her

Faculty Members Return From Sabbatical Absence

Five members of the faculty who have been on sabbatical leave during the past year are returning to their posts with the opening of the University. Those who will resume their teaching after twelve months of study and research are:

William Cabell VanVleet, professor of Law and dean of the Law School; John Raymond Lapham, professor of Civil Engineering and dean of the School of Engineering; Charles E. Hill, professor of Political Science and secretary of the Graduate Council; Thomas Benjamin Brown, professor of Physics, and Robert Russ Kern, professor of Urban Sociology.

Inspirational work as a demonstration teacher. She has collaborated in the publication of a series of textbooks and has demonstrated teaching methods in classrooms throughout the country.

Other experts who will be brought to the George Washington University in the near future are Prof. Rollo M. Tryon, of the University of Chicago, renowned in the field of teaching of history; and Prof. R. L. Lyman, also of the University of Chicago, who is considered outstanding in this country in the teaching of English.

A further development of the School of Education will be achieved next year through the organization of a Department of College Education, affording training for those who desire to enter upon a career of college training.

We know why men smoke PIPES

WOMEN don't smoke pipes.

They're not the style for women. But pipes are the style for men, and more than that, a pipe and a good tobacco gives a man greater smoking pleasure than tobacco in any other form.

In 48 out of 54

American colleges

and universities

Edgeworth is the favorite pipe tobacco. Cool slow-burning burleys give this fine tobacco exactly the character that college men like best of all.

Try a tin of Edgeworth yourself! You can buy Edgeworth whenever good tobacco is sold. Or if you prefer, you can get a special sample packet free: write to Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va., and ask for it.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old burleys, with its natural savor enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive and exclusive elevating process. Buy Edgeworth anywhere in two forms—Edgeworth Ready Rubbed and Edgeworth Plug Slice. All sizes, 1 1/2 packet package to $1.50 pound humidifier tin.

September 30 will mark the beginning of a hectic siege in interfraternity ranks. This date marks the opening of a 10-day rush period which will be crowded to the brim with smokers, banquets, suppers, and last but not least, the first dances of the season. And we will all breathe a sigh of relief when that neophyte list finally appears and we can settle down once more to the more informal affairs we all prefer.

Mrs. Tallman, chapter inspector for Chi Omega, was entertained by Phi Alpha Chapter during the week end.

The Sigma Chis believe in getting an early start. There are now seven new brothers answering to roll call up at 1813 N street. All of which is to say that Robert J. Sterling, Bernard S. Walker, Corwin R. Lockwood, Victor H. Ballard, Alfred W. Halverson, Wallace B. Agnew and Ray A. Heinburger are now owners of Sigma Chi pins by virtue of their initiation last Sunday.

Lee McNeil enjoyed herself at West Point last week end.

Weddings still seem to be the order of the day. On Saturday, September 26, Nancy Griswold became the bride of Hugh Kemp Clark. The marriage took place at St. Albans. Before her graduation from George Washington University a year ago, the bride was a member of Kappa Delta Sorority. The groom, also a graduate of the University, was a member of Alpha Chi Sigma. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will be at home on Mintwood Place after their wedding trip.

A wedding with a fine American colonial background and setting was that of Dorothy Norwood Worrall, daughter of Mrs. Maria Baldwin Worrall, and Mr. James Edward Douglass of Chevy Chase, Md., who were married at Baldwin Memorial Episcopal Church near Milleraville, Md., Friday, September 4, at midday. For their wedding trip Mr. Douglass and his bride went to Bermuda. Mrs. Douglass is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority and Delta Chi Honor Sorority. Mr. Douglass was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in the class of 1930, and is a member of Theta Xi Fraternity and Scabbard and Blade Honorary Society.

The very mysterious Green Dragons enjoyed a pleasant Thursday evening with their girl friends at some scheduled spot not so very far away. The program included swimming in a nearby lake and feasting on a delicious picnic supper.

Phi Delta Sorority entertained September 14 at the home of Alysce Biondi in honor of the members of Beta Chapter who graduated in the February and June, 1931, classes. The guests were presented with bracelets adorned with the sorority crest.

An engagement of special interest recently announced is that of Barbara Miller to Emory Nielsen. Miss Miller, a member of the Alpha Pi Sorority, was one of the most popular coeds at the University before her graduation in 1930. No definite date has been decided upon but the wedding will probably take place in the winter.

The Little Sister Committee of the Y. W. C. A. entertained for freshmen women and their "big sisters" Sunday, September 27, from 3 to 6. Jane Hill, Edith Brookhart, Jessie Hardin, and Helen Swick were hostesses to 350 in the Lambie House.

A bridge party is being given at the Y. W. C. A. building at 17th and K streets, next Thursday. Katherine Dille will have charge of the plans for the party.

Chi Upsilon has been in existence for ten years and now has chapters at the University of Oklahoma, University of Texas, University of Michigan and Cornell University. Eligibility for membership is based on the completion of a specified amount of work in Geology and allied natural science, and an interest in Geology.

The increasing number of women at George Washington who are majoring in Geology and the success of the men's geological fraternity, Sigma Gamma Epsilon, established at the University several years ago, lead to the formation of the local chapter of Chi Upsilon.

WHO'S WHO ON THE CAMRUS

MARY WEAVER

Mary Weaver, now a senior in Columbian College, is prominent on the George Washington campus both socially and journalistically speaking. In 1929 Mary was Exchange Editor of the Ghost and a reporter on the Hatchet. The next year she held the position of women's sports editor on the sub-editorial board of the Hatchet and was on the W. A. A. Board. In addition to this, Mary became interested in the Y. W. C. A. and held the position of social service chairman on the Cabinet. For the year of 1931-'32 she has been elected president of the Y. W. C. A., an associate editor of the Hatchet, and to membership in Gamma Eta Zeta, women's honorary journalistic fraternity. Last, but not least, Mary is a member of the Chi Omega Fraternity.

dents, which has come to my notice, is the one offered in the evening at the Y. M. C. A., and this, I believe, is not sponsored by the University.

If the feeling is that gymnasium work has enough merit to be required for the student who attends earlier classes and who does not work during the day, then it seems to me that a provision of some sort ought to be made for the student who is confined to an office for a great portion of the day before attending classes.

Perhaps such a provision could be included in the plans for the new George Washington University Gymnasium or in the future the University might sponsor gymnasium classes at the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. for those students who work.

Very truly yours,
GORDON V. POTTER

To the Editor:
All of the fraternity men with whom I have discussed the deferred rushing plan seem to be very much pleased with the way in which it is working out. This plan should have a tendency to increase the number of men pledged to fraternities, a good thing for the university as well as a good thing for the fraternities. But it seems to me that the Interfraternity Council could go one step further by making it possible for a man to make known that he would like to join a fraternity without making himself liable to the embarrassment which might result from a direct approach on his part.

An interfraternity smoker held in one of the University buildings for men who are interested in becoming affiliated with a fraternity, would, I believe, provide such an opportunity.

Very truly,
LESTER M. GATES.

To the Editor:
I wish to register a complaint in the name of the George Washington University Men's Glee Club against the present "point system." I think it is ridiculous to assign one point to Glee Club membership in view of the work which is done and the recognized worth of the club, not only locally, but nationally. We are considered by many critics and music-lovers as one of the best, if not the best, men's clubs in the United States at the present time. This has been brought about by many hours of practice each week in addition to the practical experience gained in the dozens of concerts given each season. As the point system has been designed to recognize both time spent on activities and results achieved, and as the glee club spends so much time on its work and has won distinction, I believe that membership should be worthy of a higher classification than that which is now assigned to it.

Respectfully yours,
RICHARD A. HILL.

Historians In Paris Hear Ragatz' Paper On Colonial Studies

Professor's Work on Twentieth Century Studies in the United States Will Soon Be Published

Dr. Lowell Joseph Ragatz, associate professor of History and editor of the American Historical Association, was the author of a paper, "Colonial Studies in the United States during the Twentieth Century," presented last week before a meeting of the International Conference of Colonial Historians. The conference was held in connection with the International Colonial Exposition in Paris which has been attracting large numbers of people to the French capital for the past several months.

Prof. Ragatz's paper, together with seven other papers (one from each country which is considered to be a colonizing power) is soon to be published in a volume by the French government.

The report covers the various works written during the last three decades by Americans who have become interested in investigating the comparatively new field of colonial history. In telling of this tremendous new interest so recently developed the author says: "The emphasis placed upon it today does not, interestingly enough, arise out of the United States having found herself possessed of an empire upon the conclusion of the Spanish War or out of her spectacular success in imperialistic adventures since, The American people are not colonially minded. They betray but slight concern over their distant holdings, calmly ignore them as fields for investment and dream of neither colon-

Women's Bureau Chief Tops List of Speakers For Graduate Sorority

Miss Mary Anderson, director of the Women's Bureau, will address the members of Beta chapter, Phi Delta Gamma, national graduate sorority, at a tea given Sunday, October 4, at 2023 G street N. W.

This is the first event of the various activities planned by the sorority for the year and one of unusual interest to professional women. The program includes a series of gatherings which will be addressed by women speakers of all professions.

Phi Delta Gamma is a professional woman's sorority which selects its members from the ranks of graduate women students for the purpose of fostering professional ideas among business women.

The officers of Beta chapter for the year 1931-1932 are: president, Margaret A. Klein; vice-president, Carolyn Whitlock; recording secretary, Bernadine Baycock; corresponding secretary, Janet Frost; chaplain, Dorothy Kemball; treasurer, Hazel Borden; historian, Florence R. Ritz; registrar, Mary Pearce.

The explanation is rather to be found in the triumph of the so-called new or integral history. When exclusively political narratives of European affairs were cast aside, and social, economic, and cultural factors were given their proper share of attention, the importance of the spread of occidental peoples in shaping old world civilization became readily apparent.

An excellent bibliography of these American colonial studies supplements Prof. Ragatz's paper.

Speaking Department Adds Prof. Harding

Curriculum Is Also Expanded to Embrace Many New Phases

With the addition of Harold Friend Harding, assistant professor of Public Speaking, to the staff of the Department of Public Speaking this division takes another step forward.

Public Speaking was organized as a separate department of instruction at The George Washington University in 1929, when the Chauncey Mitchell Depew Chair of Public Speaking was established by Mrs. Depew in memory of her husband who was one of America's most famous orators. The Chair was formally dedicated in January, 1930, when Professor Willard Hayes Yeager was installed as its first incumbent.

The curriculum of the department has been expanded to embrace all phases of forensics, including business and professional speaking, arguments and debate, oral interpretation of literature, dramatic art and play production, and oral methods of education.

A library of nearly 600 volumes has been assembled for the department, which includes volumes on public speaking and elocution by Depew, Bryan and other famous orators, and biographies of great public orators such as Gladstone, Lincoln, and Edward Everett. Among the most interesting of the library's collection are the thirteen volumes of Depew's speeches, autographed by him, a textbook used by one of his professors at Yale from 1882 to 1884, and six volumes of newspaper clippings which appeared at the time of Depew's death.

She Laughingly Apologized whenever she borrowed a pen—but she left a trail of ill will

She had an "inexpensive" pen, but it never seemed to work. So she naively borrowed, little knowing the secret aversion with which pens are lent. But as long as some people do borrow, be prepared—carry the Parker Duofold which no style of writing can distort.

You ought to go and see how Parker's large-scale production favors you in price. Even at $5, the Lady Duofold and Duofold Jr. are Guaranteed for Life, the same as the Senior Duofolds at $7 and $10.

You won't find any other with Parker's Pressureless Duofold Point that writes as easily as you breathe. You won't find another with Parker's Invisible Filler that cannot catch on clothing, or mar the radiant, jewel-like barrel.

But you will find guaranteed pens priced 50% higher with 22% to 89% less ink capacity. Stop at the nearest pen counter and see how Parker gives you dollars pre-war buying power.

Faculty Members Given Promotions

Marvin Announces Seven of Teaching Staff Are Ad- vanced in Rank

A number of faculty promotions which went into effect with the opening of the academic year on September 23 have been announced by Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of The George Washington University.

Two members of the teaching staff have been advanced from the rank of assistant professor to that of associate professor, four instructors have been promoted to assistant professorships, and one lecturer becomes a professorial lecturer.

William Paul Briggs, who served as assistant dean of the School of Pharmacy last year, has been named Dean of that school. Francis Edgar Johnston, of the Mathematics Department, has been designated associate professor of Mathematics. A member of the faculty of the University since 1927, Professor Johnston taught prior to that time at the University of Illinois, from which institution he received the Ph.D. degree. His undergraduate work was done at George Washington and he also earned master's degree here.

In the Department of History, Lowell Joseph Ragatz, Ph.D., has been named associate professor of History. Professor Ragatz has taught at George Washington since 1924, coming here from the University of Wisconsin. He has frequently published works in the field of history, and, in 1926, had the distinction of being awarded the Justin Winsor Prize of the American Historical Association for his work, "Decline of the British West Indies, 1763-1838: A Study in the Fall of the Planter Class." For the past two summers Professor Ragatz has taught courses at Johns Hopkins University in Modern European History and the Economic Development of Europe.

Instructors who have been advanced to the rank of assistant professor are: Ernest Sewell Shepard, A.M., assistant professor of English; Arthur Howard Hughes, Ph.D., assistant professor of German; William Crane Johnstone, Ph.D., assistant professor of Political Science, and Thelma Hunt, Ph.D., assistant professor of Psychology.

Spacious Athletic Quarters Provided To Comfortably House Every Athlete

Five-Story Building Makes Provision for 53 Men; House Mother Attends to Wants of Squad and Directs Culinary Activities

The private life of our football heroes is being carried on in a big way if the new training quarters for the Colonial squad in the five-story house at 1609 K Street is any indication of how the local Savvidis, Carideos and Cagles live.

Though these latter gentlemen are scarce, in this new "mad house" of ours, there are 53 men ready to die on the gridiron for dear old George Washington.

Our staff reporter rang the bell and stepped within to be greeted by a handsome fellow, fully attired, and not at all in the style of the pictures painted of the former "mad house." This gentleman was extraordinarily polite and hospitable and the visitor felt as though he were being rushed by some new fraternity!

Houses 53 Men
The conductor first explained that there were 53 men who expected to sleep in the house and eat three meals a day. Therefore, Mrs. Pieper, manager of the Park Lane Inn, who will be house mother and "food manager," is of primary importance in any story of the life of our current football squad. Mrs. Pieper will have the head chef from the Park Lane on the job to prepare the "three squares."

Rules Posted

Above the card catalogue in the main reading room the complete library rules are posted, as well as detailed instruction for using the catalogue and locating books. It is the endeavor of the library to supply books, to help students to use them, and to supplement the work of each department.

Conditions in the University Library are not ideal, but the entire staff will endeavor to assist in the intelligent use of the facilities now available.

According to an interesting article by Margaret McOmie in the September issue of "The American Motorist" entitled, "A New Campus with a History," the building in which the General Library is now housed was built for an industrial school.

"There is a fragrant breath of history around every corner of the campus at George Washington University. The girls learn to cook in General Ulysses S. Grant's headquarters. Comptroller Holmes works in General Woodhull's bedroom. President Marvin has elegant quarters in Admiral Patterson's drawing room. A professor has his office in the kitchen of an ancient house. Students with little effort can knock a tennis ball on lots once owned by Lotta Crabtree."

The Library subscribes to many periodicals and on the bulletin board of the Library is posted each month an annotated list of ten outstanding magazine articles selected by a council of librarians.

Lists will be published in The University Hatchet of the books added to the Library, and, with the intention of helping students, there will be published essential facts concerning the dictionaries, encyclopaedias, and other reference books which are in the Library.

Members of the library staff request that the students cooperate in the endeavor to solve the many problems confronting such an organized unit.

After a perusal of the above article, it might seem that the Library is a rather serious-minded place in which to work, but even it has its lighter moments. One by one the members of a large class in psychology asked the library assistants: "Have you the Mentality of Apes?" It was our turn to laugh when a student asked for Volume III of "Ibid," and an instructor wanted a book by Zweiter Band. One enterprising student discovered that the title page of a book of poems read: "Nothing to Wear," illustrated.

Provost Wilbur to Address

First Assembly for Women

Definite Program Planned For Cheer-Leading Squad

A definite program for the cheer leading squad was announced this week by Jerry Sickler, veteran cheerleader and tryouts for freshmen will be given in the gymnasium this week.

Regular practice sessions will be held, and work on the squad will give credit for physical education. Those interested may sign up with Sickler or at the Gymnasium.

Archie Burgess and Paul George are tentatively the assistant cheer leaders and will make their first appearance in "natty" new uniforms at the Elton game Saturday.

As a nucleus for a cheering section the fraternity pledges, through the cooperation of the interfraternity council, will be required to sit together at all home games.

Pi Delta Epsilon Meeting Will Plan for Convention

Pi Delta Epsilon, national honorary journalistic fraternity, will hold its first meeting of the year on Friday evening, October 2, at 8 o'clock, in The Hatchet Office.

Every member is requested to be present. The meeting will be a short one. The officers merely desire to start organization of some plan to take care of the national convention of the fraternity which will be held at George Washington this year, and to formulate a tentative program of activity for the year.

Troubadour Orchestra Calls For Experienced Musicians
